Consolidation of Schools

The old one teacher rural school has served its purpose. From the modern standpoint of child welfare and education, it has been found that this type of school is inefficient; it is so in its methods, and assuredly in its results. Today the common methods of judging pupils are by means of Departmental examinations; as a proof of this last statement, perhaps the following figures will suffice: Forty-eight candidates sat on the last Departmental examination for Grade VIII in the Clareholm center; twenty-six of these received their training in town schools; the others were students from rural schools; of the former twenty-four were successful in obtaining their diplomas, while in the latter class scarcely more than six were successful. Not only is this true of the Clareholm center, but other centers could give as convincing figures. The former, which may be used as a type, consolidated schools, passed ninety-two per cent of its students, while the rural schools average of percentage was only twenty-five; thus from those figures alone, it is seen, that the consolidated school is four times as efficient as the rural one teacher school, and yet you will hear people declare that the rural school is the best type of school, that it was able to produce men like Lincoln; and there the likeness stops. People forget that such a school was operated in those days and from the nature of the man himself, it was his own intellect and will power that enabled him to be what he became, and not the school he attended.

Since the time when this topic was first broached in public, two important side issues have since occurred. The first is the advent of the motor trolley. One often hears the remark, that when peace finally comes a huge amount of war material and accessories will be rendered useless. Motor lorries are in this class; but it will soon become apparent, that such will not be the case. Already the War Department is being flooded with applications for these vehicles. Market gardeners, farmers, etc., find that this conveyance proves adaptable to their needs. Hitherto one of the greatest objections to the consolidation of schools is the long period spent on the road coming and going to school. By the use of a motor truck this greatest of obstacles may be removed, the children may be conveyed in comfort as well, and in the end it will be much cheaper. It is advisable for those school districts contemplating consolidation to apply for one of these immediately.

Another side issue of consolidation is to be found in a recent enactment of the Alberta Legislature, whereby fees to the amount of $30 per pupil per annum are to be paid the school district three pupils attend. This at first appears harmless, but it is undoubtedly the forerunner of compulsory consolidation. I have in mind one school district near by, which, in addition to supporting its own school, will have to pay the Clareholm School District between $200 and $300 per annum while children from it attend the town school. The conclusion from this is self-evident.

One objection frequently raised to this plan is the condition of the roads. Even if roads were allowed to remain as they are, are for about ten days out of the year cars may be used, and motor trucks are so constructed to overcome any difficulties; this has been proved time and again on the western front, where trucks were operated in all kinds of weather, and under all manner of climatic conditions, without fail in those countries. Besides, people frequently forget, that this use of roads for the conveyance of children to and from school would rather tend to a general improvement of all roads.

The ideal consolidated school will be Ruby, Trout Creek, Hoosier, Fire

Mill, Prairie View, Clareholm View, with Clareholm as center—all of them connected with the center by means of motor buses. Such a territory with a large attendance would produce incalculably better results. This school curriculum would then include Manual Training for the boys and Domestic Science for the girls. Children brought up in such a school would be proud of themselves, and would have cause to bless their benefactors.

The writer of this article will be glad to answer any questions on this topic.

The Community Church

The article which appeared in last week's issue, "A Better Clareholm," has provoked considerable criticism. Interpretations have been put upon some statements that were not intended by the writer. There was no intention whatever to underrate the value of the church. With all that fault there is no institution that has done so much to uplift the world and to create high moral standards as the Christian church. Its influence has been the inspiration of every philanthropic movement that during the past nineteen centuries has blessed this world. The man who has habitually deprived himself of the spiritual influences and educational advantages of the church is greatly to be pitied. He becomes in the course of a few years only half a man. One half of him, and that half that links him with God, is dead. The other half, that links him with the animal world alone, is alive and flourishing.

There was no intention on the part of the writer to condemn the churches wholesale, but simply to point out the means by which the church could more effectively fulfill its mission in the world. "In unity is strength," and a community church would unite in one all the scattered forces of the church so that it would be a mighty power in the public and private life of the community.

Dr. Allison, of Wesley College, in reviewing that remarkable book entitled "Deep Fountains," which has recently been published, shows that the writer is not alone in his view of the possible fate of the church unless it adapts itself to the new conditions. He says in closing his article:

"The united farmers of the west are not interested exclusively in bettering conditions of material life. They are also going to lead Canada in establishing the community church idea. In 1916 President H. W. Wood, of Alberta, inaugurated the 'U. F. A. Sunday,' a Sunday in each year to be set aside as the farmers' own particular day, with special sermons and services. It was born of a realization that 'the church will have to take on broader responsibilities than it is now doing.' It is the opinion of leaders in this farmers' co-operative movement that the solution of economic questions must be spiritual rather than intellectual, and the church of Christ must take the responsibility for it. In June, 1917, at a mass meeting in Moose Jaw, President J. A. Maharg of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, spoke out loud and clear on this question. Said he, 'There has been a strong agitation against church union. We hope to bring the churches together. The establishment of community churches is not altogether an impossibility.' It is to be hoped that the present year will witness the consummation of the movement for church union and federation. It would be the most beneficent of all peace celebrations. And not only in the country places but in the cities the public opinion of Western Canada will welcome it enthusiastically. It is now the duty of the grain growers to send a message to the ecclesiastical demanding that the next move in the co-operative life of Canada."

Gained Victoria Cross

Three War Heroes Honored After Death—One Piper Did

Brave Deeds
Five Victoria Crosses have been awarded the recipients of three of which have been killed. The most thrilling account accompanies the award to Piper James Macdonald, a Manitoba regiment.

Prior to the attack he obtained permission to play his company "over the top." As the company approached its objective, it was hit by very strong fire and came under an intense fire which caused heavy casualties, which momentarily demoralized the formation. Richardson, reflecting the situation, strode up, and down with the greatest coolness. The effect was instantaneous. Inspired by his splendid example, the company pushed the wire with such fury and determination that the obstacle was overcome, and the position captured. Later, after participating in bombing operations, he was detailed to take back wounded comrades to the rear again and is accordingly presumed dead, though these are not confirmed.

A Boy's Bad Break

A rather disquieting lady called at the other afternoon. She called at the house of one of her acquaintances and the little fellow who answered the door said that his mother was out. The disquieted lady took out a card to leave, and in doing so he let the letter slip. She picked it up, and "Please," he said, "you dropped one of your cigarette papers."—Herald.

To the War Loan

Farmers are Stopping the Profit-Eating Leaks this Year

Comparatively few farmers fail or lose heavily because of misfortune such as fire, wind or drought. The majority of failures and losses are from combined little leaks, and it is the many little leaks that are being studied and stopped.

HERE ARE SOME OF THEM—Feeding Wastes, Disease from Unsanitary Buildings, Unprotected Machinery. There are others but here are enough to kill the profits on any farm.

THE REMEDY—Concrete Greenery Foundations and Floors, Concrete Barn and Hog House Floors, a Machine Shed. None of them are expensive and each will quickly pay for itself. Call and let us give you prices.

The Alberta Horse Breeders' Association desires information from all owners of horses for which they have no ready market, and which they would undertake to supply to provide meat to relieve the shortage of meat supply in countries where the residents are accustomed to using horse flesh as food.

Present indications justify the belief that a market for this class of horses may be provided if the owners in Alberta will undertake to supply same in sufficient numbers. Whether or not there is a market practically depends on the activity of the overseas livestock.

Kindly fill in the information below, cut same out and mail it to the undersigned.

A Fitting Memorial

No one will ever estimate the exact cost of the war. The cost in money will doubtless be given to the fraction of a cent. The number of lives sacrificed may be counted. But who can set a price upon the sorrow, the heart-aches, the sleepless nights of those bereaved and the ever increasing loneliness of mother or wife whose son or husband has been buried in "Flanders field where the poppies blow." The memory of the heroic dead will ever live in such hearts. But in the majority of homes in Canada no such sorrow has entered, and the time has come for a grateful people to show by the erection of suitable monuments their appreciation of the price that has been paid by our dead heroes.

Claresholm and Meadow Creek have shared the honors and losses of war, and it is not too soon for us to think of some plan to perpetuate the memory of our brave boys who fell in the light. Instead of building a useless monument, in what better way could we honor the memory of the Claresholm and Meadow Creek boys who made the supreme sacrifice for the cause of freedom than to build a social center, where present and future generations could meet for pleasure and profit to keep alive the principles of democracy for which our heroes died. The names of those whom we should be engraved on a tablet of stone at the entrance of the building. Their photos as well as the photos of the great leaders who have distinguished themselves in the great world war should be hung on the walls of the rooms within. The British government has already appointed a commission to distribute war trophies throughout the empire. Possibly Claresholm might obtain a couple of German cannons taken by Canadians at Vimy Ridge or some other historic battlefield, and where else should we place them but at the entrance of the building erected to the memory of our heroic dead.

Such a building, equipped with reading room, library, gymnasium, pool room, and a public hall where lectures and moving pictures could be given free as a means of public enlightenment and education would be both a fitting and useful memorial.

Few, if any, would complain at the cost or refuse to contribute, and there is little doubt but that sufficient Victory Bonds would be given as an endorsement to insure its perpetual maintenance. R. K. Fox.

Canada Produces Her Own Seed

The Department of Agriculture, Seed Branch, issues the following on the Field Root and Vegetable Seed supply:-

Before the war the field root and vegetable seeds used in Canada were obtained largely from Europe. Nangel and best seed came principally from France and Germany, most of our turnip from Great Britain and Holland, and carrots from France and Great Britain. Cabbage, cauliflower, celery, parsnip, garden best and radish seeds were mainly from European stocks. Tomato, onion, cucumber and melon seeds were supplied by the United States, while peas, beans and sweet corn comprised the bulk of Canadian production.

The inferior quality of much of the imported seed together with the possible uncertainty of foreign supply led the Seed Branch to investigate the feasibility of home production. Aside from small quantities grown experimentally by Dominion and Provincial experiment stations individual farmers and gardeners were found to be growing seed in a small way and their experiences were recorded. Indeed, certain localities have had some reputation, notably Yarmouth Co., N.S., for anise seed and Waterloo Co., Ont., for the seeds of more tender vegetables. But the growers were handicapped by inexperienced, unsuitable machinery, and the high cost of labor.

With a view to acquiring complete information, experiments extending over a four year period were conducted in Western Ontario under Government contract and supervision. Practically all the different kinds of field root and vegetable seeds were grown in quantity and careful records kept of the various operations. The results were quite satisfactory and served as a basis for drawing up a schedule of subventions to growers which were authorized by the Hon. the Minister of Agriculture in 1915. These subventions are paid direct to the grower on the certification of officials who are responsible for the inspection of growing seed crops and reconditioned seed. They are paid on the principal kinds produced and held for seedling in Canada, and amount to about one-eighth of normal retail prices which were estimated as necessary to overcome the disadvantages of production in Canada.

Some 10,000 pounds of these seeds, mostly sugar, best, nangel, anise, turnip, tomato, onion, radish and lettuce, passed inspection in 1913 and were recommended for subventions. On the outbreak of the war in 1914 Seed Branch officers conducted a rigorous campaign in Eastern Canada and British Columbia, and in 1916 reported over 36,000 pounds. Last year the Canadian crop was approximately 64,000 pounds, and this year, with the assistance of the Experimental Farms Branch, production will reach almost a quarter million pounds of essential field root and vegetable seed. Stocks for the 1919 seed crop have been produced this season for plantings next spring on a basis sufficient for well over three-quarters of a million pounds.

It is most fortunate that our Canadian seed trade was well stocked with seed supplied on the outbreak of the war. Imports from Europe have become much less each year with the greater necessity for essential food production, and last season the allied European countries placed very strict embargoes against seed exports. Canada and the United States have thus been thrown largely on their own resources, hence the rapid development of home production in both countries.

The Seed Branch has been working in the closest co-operation with the American Seed Reporting Service, Bureau of Markets, Washington, in conducting Seed Survey and exchanging seed supplies. The Seed Commission has returned from the conference at Washington on the American Seed Stocks Committee with representatives of the Food Administration, War Trade Board, Seed Trade and Seed Growers. He reported to the conference that the Canadian Seed Trade and Canners stocks on hand, together with our 1918 seed production would make possible the provision for export of certain seeds to the United States in return for their supplying our shortages. Arrangements were made for the unrestricted interchange of seeds between both countries and for seed exports to overseas allied countries. Canadian farmers and gardeners may thus feel assured of sufficient supplies of field root and vegetable seeds for their crops of next season.

"What Phonograph Shall I Buy?"

How many times, when the subject of purchasing a phonograph or talking machine has come up, have you asked yourself this question!

The Edison tone test answers it for you, completely, convincingly.

Over two million music lovers have been present when this test was being made; and they have realized, as you will realize, that the New Edison alone can actually re-create the human voice and the music of human-played instruments.

It is all-important that you hear

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

because it is the only instrument that re-creates the singer's voice so faithfully that the human ear cannot distinguish the rendition of the artist from that of the New Edison.

The wise way to choose your phonograph is to have the several makes of phonographs and talking machines sent to your home on trial, where you can make direct comparisons among them, and then decide which one you would like to keep—which one you think you would enjoy hearing as much five years from now as you do to-day.

Be your own salesman. Send a phonograph to yourself. We will gladly send a New Edison to your home for the purpose, without obligation on your part.

GAME SANCTUARY FOR NORTH-WESTERN CANADA

The Advisory Board on Wildlife Protection has been drawing public attention to the need for protecting the important game resources of Northern Canada, and is now looking into the need for a game sanctuary in the Yukon Territory to save from destruction the mountain sheep, caribou, moose and other large game that are found in considerable numbers in that region.

"From information obtained from prospectors, hunters, trappers, and Indians it is estimated that there are probably between 4,000 and 5,000 mountain sheep in the district bounded by White Dog and Nitling rivers," says Mr. A. L. Bell, of the N.W.M.P., Whitehorse sub-district, in reporting on the advisability of establishing such a sanctuary. "These animals have undoubtedly been driven to that district from the more accessible areas of account of persistent hunting on the part of both white men and Indians. Unfortunately, the Yukon game ordinance does not sufficiently cover the preservation of mountain sheep, as under Sub-sec. 1 of Sec. 5, explorers, surveyors, prospectors, miners or travellers who are engaged in any exploration, survey, or mining operations, or other examination of the territory, and, in actual need of the beasts, birds or eggs, for food, may lawfully hunt, kill, or take of any birds, and eggs of the birds or other wild fowl so mentioned in this ordinance. Section 23 of this ordinance states, with the exception of Section 3 hereof, the ordinance shall not apply to Indians who are in the Yukon Territory." The ordinance applies to buffalo and bison.

"I have no doubt that mountain sheep, as well as moose, caribou, etc., have been wantonly slaughtered by Indians and by white men as well—not only for food, but also for trophies. The Indians accuse the white men of this, and on the other hand, the white men accuse the Indians of the same. Unfortunately the Indians are aware that, under the ordinance, they may kill practically as much game as they wish, for food or otherwise.

"I consider the suggestion of creating this area into a sanctuary an exceedingly good one, and if it is carried out, a detachment of one constable could be established, or a competent game warden employed, who, with dogs or pack horses, could patrol the district at regular intervals and keep in close touch with both Indians and white men. This, in my opinion, the only method by which the game can be preserved."

ARE INSURANCE COSTS GOING TO BE REDUCED?

The Report of the Commission of Conservation ("Fire Work in Canada," which contends that the cost of conducting fire insurance business in Canada is too high, due largely to the commissioning paid to agents, appears to be bringing remedial action. A press report says that an important conference, extending over a week, was held last month in New York City by officials of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association and the executive heads of several large United States insurance companies, to discuss this very problem. It is reported that recently representatives of the companies and their agents met for the purpose of arriving at some means of reducing commissions but to definite decision was reached. It is understood that at least two provincial governments are considering the advisability of enacting legislation to deal with the matter if the companies do not act with promptitude.

Selling extracts from "Fire Work in Canada," dealing with this important phase of the fire insurance business, are as follows:

"Of greater importance than profits in affecting the actual cost of fire insurance to the people of Canada is the expense of carrying on the business. That approximately 30 per cent of all premiums should be expended implies extravagant administration. If a reasonable proportion of this amount were used in attempting to prevent fires, the expenditure might be justified, as is the case with boiler insurance where the cost of inspection to prevent losses exceeds the amount paid for losses. It is doubtful, however, if more than one per cent of the fire insurance premium is directly applied to fire prevention work, which, approximately 21 per cent is distributed in agents' commissions. This is obviously a large expenditure upon maintenance.

"The root evil of the insurance business, and one of the greatest factors in the excessive fire losses in Canada is undoubtedly the method of compensating agents. At the present time, commissions of approximately 25 per cent of the premiums are paid upon preferred, 20 per cent upon mercantile, and 15 per cent upon manufacturing and sprinklered businesses, although these rates are greatly exceeded by some companies, in certain places. In the larger cities such as Montreal and Toronto, commissions are determined by competition and as much as 40 and 50 per cent is frequently paid for good business. Agents control the business, and they are justified in deriving the purchase price as high as possible. On the other hand, the companies want the business at the least, extending consistent with maintenance of quality. Again, whether agents are compensated by salary commission or profit sharing is of no consequence in the matter of fire insurance, for, in any case, essentially from other forms of business. This, however, is the crux of the whole situation. Rates of premiums in fire insurance are high or low in accordance with the physical susceptibility of a risk to fire loss. Poor risks demand high premiums. The agent receives a greater compensation for insuring risk, at a high premium than at a low premium."

November Rod and Gun

The November issue of Rod and Gun published by W. J. Taylor Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is on the new standards and is replete with good things for the sportsman reader and lover of outdoor life generally. "Canadian Game Trails" by Hubert Hutton, "The Moose Call" a story of two narrow escapes, by G. H. Hiltz, "Caribou," the record of a unique experience, in the winter wilds, by A. Sturzel, and "Hunters of the Head" by George H. Belton, are some of the contributions to the story section of the magazine. Other articles follow and the usual departments are well maintained. An article on the making of modern guns is illustrated by F. V. Williams who is also the cover design artist. Guns and Ammunition continue the first instalment of "The National Matches at Camp Perry" by U. S. Laurie. Rod and Gun Mechanics for Trappers is a page of illustrations and supplements the department along the Trap Line which is continued in this issue.
